Oops you were faster. This is closely related to #1803.

I do this for the moment manually before each release using the testall.sh script in GammaLib and ctools. I'll do this also for release 1.1, but in the long run I would like that this is done at unit test level automatically.

So your issue is fine as a reminder for release 1.1, and we keep #1803 for the implementation of the automatic test.
